About the cover

Louis van der Heide
Editor, Avian Diseases, 1994–2003

Dr. van der Heide received his veterinary medical and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Utrecht in the Netherlands.

He joined the University of Maine, Orno, as an Associate Professor and was in charge of the Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory, where he was involved in poultry disease research and teaching for three years. He then moved to the Department of Pathobiology, University of Connecticut, Storrs, where he discovered attenuated strains of reovirus and developed one of the most important live vaccines for reovirus infections. This vaccine is still being used by poultry breeders and growers in the U.S. and worldwide.

He became head of the Department of Pathobiology at the University of Connecticut and served for 8 years before retiring. During his professional career, he edited numerous chapters for books on poultry diseases and virology and published over a hundred research articles and numerous proceedings articles. He served as an active editorial board member for Avian Pathology and Poultry Science. In addition, he was the president of the Connecticut Veterinary Medical Association. He has been very active in the AAAP, having served as the President and as the Editor of Avian Diseases from 1994 to 2003.

During his tenure with the journals, he introduced many new systems and procedures that greatly improved the journal and shortened the time from submission to publication for manuscripts.
