About the cover

David P. Anderson
Editor, Avian Diseases, 1973–1994

Dave was born in Twin Falls, Idaho. He attended the University of Idaho, then Washington State University, where he received his BS in 1959 and DVM in 1961. He did his graduate work at the University of Wisconsin under Professor Robert P. Hanson and received his MS in 1964 and PhD in 1965. Dave is a Founding Diplomat of the American College of Poultry Veterinarians and a Diplomat of the American College of Veterinary Microbiologists.

Dave joined the faculty of the University of Wisconsin in the Department of Veterinary Science. During this time, Dr. Hitoshi Kawamura, who had joined him as a post-doctoral fellow, isolated a herpesvirus from turkeys that was used as the first successful vaccine for Marek's disease. Dave also served in the U. S. Army at the Meat and Dairy Hygiene School in Chicago, Illinois.

In 1969 he moved to the University of Georgia as Director of the Poultry Disease Research Center, which later became the Department of Avian Medicine. While at the university, he served as Associate Dean for Research and Graduate Affairs and Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine before retiring in 1996. His research at Georgia and Wisconsin was devoted to environmental effects on avian respiratory diseases.

He was Editor of Avian Diseases from 1973 to 1994. He also served as the editor of the poultry disease section of the Merck Veterinary Manual for ten years. He was President of the American Association of Avian Pathologists in 1988 and received the Special Service Award from the AAAP in 1991. This fall he will be honored with membership in the World Veterinary Poultry Association Hall of Honor.

Dave has been married to Gale for 50 years and they have two children, Kathryn and Christopher, and three grandchildren. In retirement Dave enjoys hunting, fishing, taking naps, telling jokes, and being politically incorrect.
