

Dear ACPV Diplomates,

I hope all are well. Everyone I speak with is extremely busy between Avian Influenza, Infectious Laryngotracheitis (both unfortunately), and very cold winter/spring weather. I hope your birds and yourselves are staying healthy!

I would like to take the time and update our members with some of the recent ongoing ACPV activities.

The 2023 ACPV workshop, "Enterococcus: An Old Dog with New Tricks" held in Sacramento, California on March 12, 2023 in conjunction with WPDC meeting was well received. The program had a total of 90 registrations. Thank you for any volunteers during the work shop with special thanks and gratitude to Drs. Alex Reilley and Algis Martinez for their co-chair leadership and many hours of prep for this successful workshop.

We are looking forward to our 2024 WPDC workshop meeting being co-chaired by Drs. Michele Kromm and Roy Jacob.

ACPV needs your support! The following committees have opening positions. If you are interested in serving on any one of these committees, please contact myself or the ACPV office.

COMMITTEE	OPEN POSITIONS
Credentials Review	1
Training Program Review	1
Examination	2
Recertification	2

We also need a volunteer to be ABVS Representative Alternate which is a two-year term then turning into the primary Representative for four years after that. Please contact myself or ACPV office if you have interest in this position.

This year's ACPV exam will be offered on August 15th simultaneously at six locations in North America. Thank you to everyone who secured the locations and will help to proctor the exam.

In our last Board of Governors meeting, several members applied for and were accepted for emeritus status. If you are retiring, please contact the ACPV office for details on how to obtain emeritus status.

Meeting registration and lodging reservations are open for our 2023 AAAP meeting in Jacksonville, Florida for June 11-14, 2023. Some committee activities begin earlier than June 11 so check the website for details. I hope to see you all there.

Safe travels!
